“Timesheet Xpress easily enables the recapture of that hour for chargebacks purposes since now everyone is preparing a timesheet and doing so more accurately. The reporting capabilities are the huge timesaver. ”

Edward Striffler, Design & Construction Manager; City of Peoria Engineering Department

After implementing Timesheet Xpress...

Successfully using Timesheet Xpress for a short period of time, Edward became aware of the need to track project costs and noticed that as an integrated feature of Timesheet Xpress, if they added employee cost (rate), the software would calculate the billing (or chargebacks) dollar amounts.

Quarterly, the Public Works Department needed to report to the Budget Office the amount of time and money spent on projects. Reports in Timesheet Xpress could be generated in minutes, in contrast to the tallying of spreadsheets still in use by other departments. The Budget Office really liked the way that reports were presented through Timesheet Xpress, so encouraged the Engineering Department to have a look at the software solution Public Works had been using.

In 2009, a reorganization took place which transferred Edward and his staff to the Engineering Department. This transfer gave the Engineering Department's financial analyst an up close look at Timesheet Xpress' ease of use and reporting capabilities. Since (mid 2009), the City of Peoria Timesheet Xpress deployment has grown to 45 users in the Public Works, Engineering, and Planning & Community Development departments. The multi-department abilities within Timesheet Xpress allow departments to be part of a larger installation with each having their own department specific clients, projects and tasks.

Additionally Edward said “The stability of the software has been a blessing. We have almost no time spent in desktop support after the initial installation!”

Current Situation using Timesheet Xpress...

As with many organisations, given the global economy shifts over the past 12 months, the City has fallen upon tough economic times. Budgets are all being tightened and staff reductions are being evaluated. The Engineering Department's abilities to increase its chargebacks (financial reimbursement of operating funds from capital funds) were the Departments approach to cost reduction.

Striffler commented that “It (Timesheet Xpress) is working excellent. Our chargebacks are now higher than they've ever been simply because people can now track our time with ease. We now understand the real cost (in time and dollars) of managing a project. Our chargebacks are now approaching $1.5M per year ... ”

From a network standpoint, Edward said “we've been able to automate the deployment of Timesheet Xpress, minimizing our IT department's support of the software. They “push” the install package out across the network to the Client PC, and we (Engineering) can configure for the user. Low cost software and low cost to maintain ... perfect !”

“It (Timesheet Xpress) makes steering and planning easier as the number of hours spent in each project are actually and in the history know.

In comparison with using spreadsheet program for it I estimate it saves us at least one hour for each employee. In comparison with a spreadsheet program: it saves a lot of time.”

FROM: KARL CINI – BRIAN TONNA & CO. (MALTA)

“We used to work on excel based timesheets which were not linked or networked. The biggest difficulty we had was in collating all data together and extracts the reports we require.

We now have up to date information on time spent on our clients and distinguishing between time that can be charged separately and that which is included in a retainer. We can thus monitor our fees ensuring that our retainer fees are adequately covering time spent thereon. It is also helping us to budget for time to be spent on audits and other recurring projects by analysing time spent during the previous year.

We cannot exactly determine cost savings as our firm has steadily increased its workforce over the past years. However I can estimate that at least 3 hrs per month per employee is saved.

I would say the biggest advantage would be the ease of use of the software.”
